TO YOUR HEALTH

In my opinion, there couldn't be a better time to launch a magazine that focuses on looking and feeling your best, while prioritizing health and wellness. The past few years have really shown us how valuable and fragile our health is, and I've personally reevaluated the way I take care of myself. That's why I'm so excited to share this incredible new resource with all of you.

One of my favorite things about this issue is our story about two formidable doctors and my personal friends, Dr. Michael Somenek and Dr. Troy Pittman, known as DC's dynamic duo of plastic surgery. I'm so excited to celebrate all of their accomplishments in this issue. I think you'll love the feature story we put together—and don't miss their new S+P MedSpa.

One of my most cherished events of the year, the Great Ladies Luncheon & Fashion Show, returned this summer, and we showcase this wonderful event—and others—in this issue.

I would also like to congratulate all of this year's esteemed top doctors. In this issue, you'll find our comprehensive list of physicians, surgeons and specialists. They epitomize the best of the best when it comes to healthcare. Use this list as a year-round resource for all of your wellness needs. Stay healthy!

Best,

What are the benefits of choosing a health system vs. a traditional care model?

In the world of health care, you have two options to choose from: the fee-for-service model or an integrated health system. Most are familiar with traditional health care. The popular opinion is it offers more choice on who they can select as a provider.

Health systems seem more of a mystery. Many don't understand how they work, or their benefits to patients. There's a misperception that they are a "closed network" that reduces your options, rations care, and provides sub-standard quality. But that's not the case at Kaiser Permanente.

As the region's leading health system,¹ they offer a care and coverage environment that champions your overall health and wellness. There, you'll have an entire care team—doctors, specialists, diagnostics, pharmacy, health plan—connected via a digital health record. They all share information and collaborate with one another to deliver customized care. It's a partnership that works in the best interests of your health.

As a Kaiser Permanente member, you're not burdened with redundant and expensive tests. There's no need to carry your medical information from doctor to doctor. You're never on your own to search for a specialist or manage your own care. And insurers don't make the decisions about your care and treatment—you and your doctor do.

So, what DO Kaiser Permanente members enjoy as part of a health system?

Life expectancy that's 6 years longer than the national average²

The shared knowledge of 1,700+ regional doctors and 23,000+ nationwide

Hundreds of Permanente physicians recognized annually as Top Doctors³

Rated 5 out of 5 stars for our commercial and Medicare plans by the National Committee for Quality Assurance⁴

90% of our members would renew, and 87% would recommend us to their family and friends⁵

¹In the survey Best Health Insurance Companies for 2021 by Insure.com, Kaiser Permanente as a national enterprise is rated #1 overall among 15 companies. In the NCQA Commercial Health Plan Ratings 2021, our commercial plan is rated 5 out of 5, the highest rating in MD, VA, and DC. The 2019 Commission on Cancer, a program of the American College of Surgeons, granted Three-Year Accreditation with Commendation to the Kaiser Permanente cancer care program (extended through 2022). The Mid-Atlantic Permanente Medical Group is the largest multispecialty medical group in the Washington, DC, and Baltimore areas and exclusively treats Kaiser Permanente members. Permanente doctors are recognized as Top Doctors in Northern Virginia Magazine (2022), Washingtonian magazine (2021), and Baltimore magazine (2021). According to NCQA's Quality Compass® 2021, we're rated 5 out of 5 in 29 measures, including: controlling blood pressure (heart disease), blood pressure control (140/90) (diabetes), glucose control, colorectal cancer screening, breast cancer screening, cervical cancer screening, childhood immunizations, prenatal check-ups, and postpartum care. EXPECTING THE BEST

For the past nine months, health and wellness have been at the very top of my mind. By the time this issue hits newsstands across the Washington, DC, region, I will have recently greeted my first child into the world.

After spending 40-plus weeks going to more doctor's appointments than ever before, I have a newfound appreciation for the top-tier healthcare services we have access to across DC and the surrounding counties in Northern Virginia and Maryland.

The sheer quality of medical professionals in the area can be seen throughout this issue, most notably in the Top Doctors list, created in partnership with medical research company Castle Connolly, the authoritative voice on the best of the best in the medical field. Formulated by peer nomination, research, review and screening, the directory serves as a resource for those seeking healthcare across multiple subspecialties. If you're looking for a new doctor, this is a great place to start.

Gracing our cover is the Somenek + Pittman team, highly recognized in the area for their upscale office, surgical suite and medspa located in the West End neighborhood of Washington, DC. Providing a variety of both surgical and noninvasive treatments, patients leave their practice with a boost of confidence and self-assurance.

Inside this issue, you'll also find a variety of inspiring local doctors sharing their passion for helping their patients feel and look their best. Take, for example, the new Inova Saville Cancer Screening and Prevention Center located in Fairfax. The screening center is the first of its kind to open in the DC area, offering comprehensive care for average and high-risk individuals. It will certainly save countless lives in our region. You'll also hear from female surgeons on what it means to break glass ceilings in the medical profession, find exciting news about Johns Hopkins' expansion into the region, learn about groundbreaking treatments being offered in cosmetic surgery and much more.

Thank you to the medical professionals who continue to care for our communities, and thank you to our readers—I hope you find this issue as inspiring as I do, filled with information that will help you live healthier, smarter and stronger lives. This year-round reference guide is an excellent place to start. Here's to your health in the months to come. Enjoy!

WITH DR. NATALIE GRIGORIAN

DOCTOR AT AETHERIUM ACUPUNCTURE & INTEGRATIVE MEDICINE

Q: What first sparked your interest in medicine, health and wellness? Additionally, what drew you to your specialty?

A: Witnessing my grandfather suffer from the excruciating physical and emotional pain caused from his cancer treatments drew me to find a solution to ease his suffering. Ultimately, this led me to become a Doctor of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine.

While working at some of the premier medical facilities in the United States and China—including George Washington University Center for Integrative Medicine, U/M Upper Chesapeake Health's Kaufman Cancer Center, and Second Affiliated Hospital of Nanjing University of Chinese Medicine—I experienced firsthand the practice of true integrative medicine and witnessed what some would consider miracles. Patients who could not be hugged because of chronic pain were able to lead normal lives; patients who had partial facial nerve damage could smile again; and patients undergoing chemotherapy had relief from their nausea. My passion drew me to creating Aetherium Acupuncture & Integrative Medicine, a state-of-the-art healing center in which patients in the Washington, D.C., metro area can safely receive integrative treatments anchored in the wisdom of traditional Chinese medicine.

Q: What about your work continues to inspire you today?

A: The most wonderful part of my profession is seeing patients find relief for a condition that has persisted for years and has not been solved through conventional medicine. It inspires me when patients come in after a treatment with a new sense of hope, sharing that they are feeling more like themselves and they are able to start doing the things they love again.

Q: What makes Integrative medicine different?

A: Integrative medicine is a patient-centered approach that combines conventional and alternative therapies with a particular attention on understanding the whole person—including mind, body and spirit. This broader holistic approach to healing the entire person rather than a single symptom aims to find solutions for patients with persistent and complicated chronic conditions, ultimately allowing patients to feel happier and healthier.

Q: What are some treatments that you wish more people knew about and why?

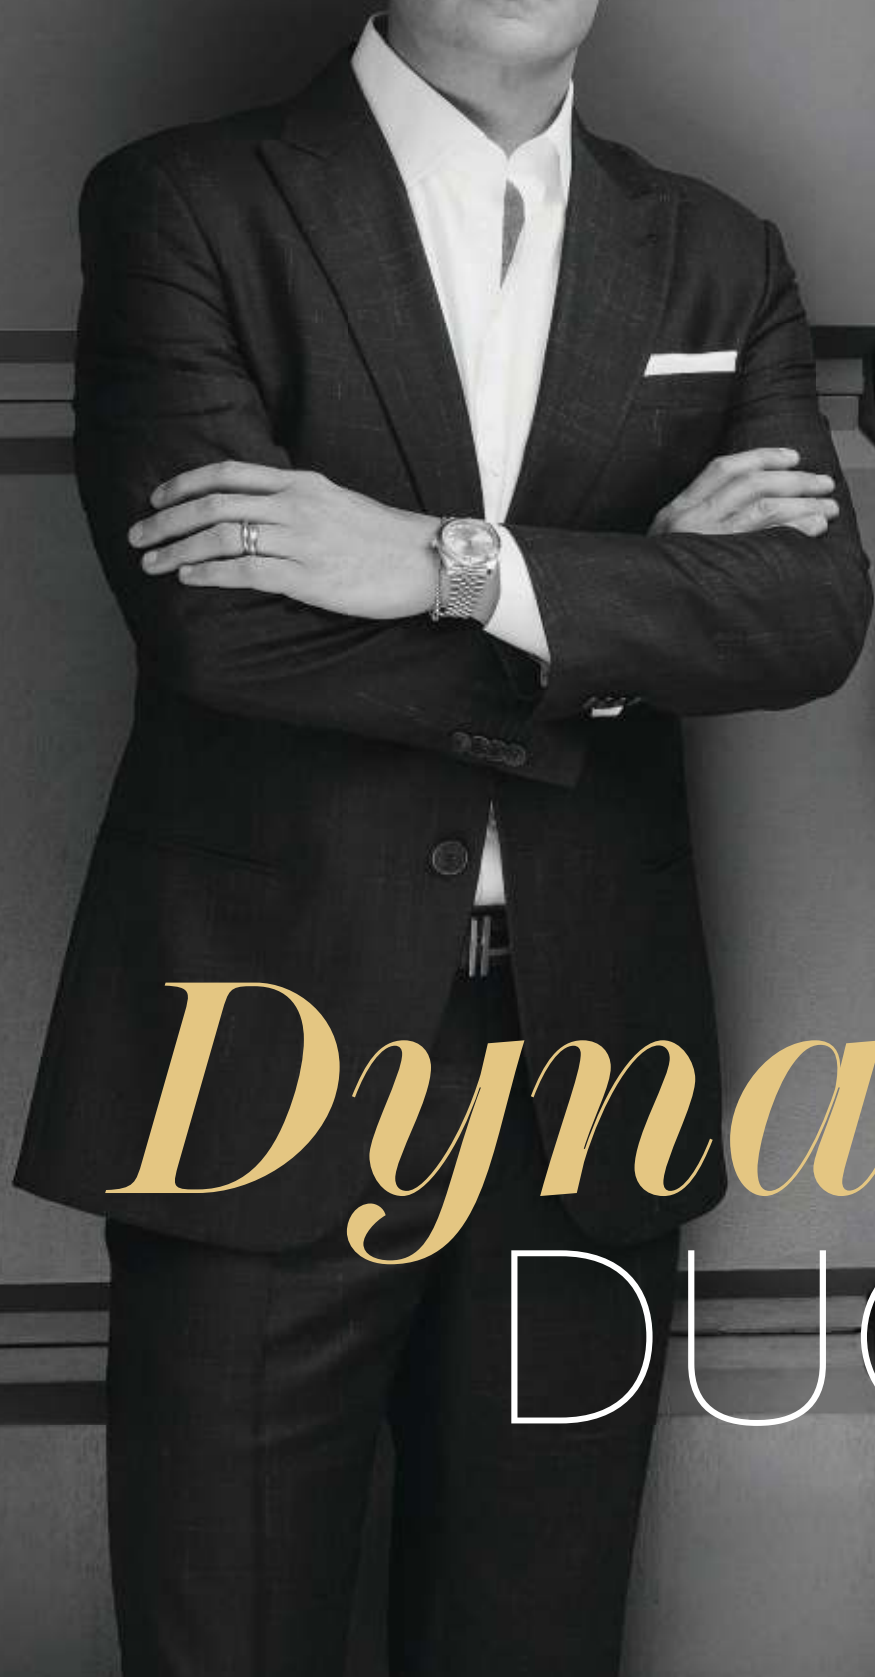

A: As a Doctor of Acupuncture & Oriental medicine, my goal is to achieve measurable, long-lasting results so that patients can get back to living their life to the fullest. Treatments may consist of one or a combination of services, including acupuncture, dry needling, Chinese herbal medicine, ATP, Resonance BioTherapy or O3 ReBoot Therapy.

Dynamic DUO

The advanced plastic surgery practice and new S+P MedSpa led by Dr. Michael Somenek and Dr. Troy Pittman is predicated on innovation, expertise and patients who love the life-changing results.

BY MICHAEL MCCARTHY
PHOTOGRAPHED BY TONY POWELL
SHOT ON LOCATION AT FAIRMONT
WASHINGTON, DC

Last fall, I was lucky enough to dine with Dr. Michael Somenek and Dr. Troy Pittman in a trendy Northeast restaurant that remains one of the hottest reservations in town. The conversation with these plastic surgeons flowed, as it always does. There was discussion of fitness, politics, fashion, travel, architecture, interior design and, of course, food. These gents are not only well-traveled, but have the type of social panache that makes them must-invite guests to any DC dinner party.

The night was fabulous—and the food kept coming, small plates with outsized ambition. We all smiled when the next course arrived, with eyebrows slightly raised. I looked at my watch. It was 9:45, and we had been dining for more than two hours. I asked Dr. Pittman, offhandedly, what time he normally gets to bed each night.

“Oh, usually by 10,” he said with a grin, both of us knowing we had at least another hour in the culinary trenches. We laughed it off, but I knew he was serious.

After all, Somenek+Pittman (somenekpittmanmd.com) has grown to become one of the region's top plastic surgery practices for a reason: These doctors are disciplined inside and outside the office, and their patients are always top of mind. Their uncompromising standards have become a bellwether for any medical practice.

“The thing that sets us apart is our attention to detail in everything we do,” says Pittman, who is a board-certified plastic surgeon. “This should be an exciting process for patients and clients. We want everyone to feel like they’re getting something special.”

Walk into the Somenek+Pittman office in Washington's West End, which is steps from Georgetown, and it's clear that, in addition to a world-class medical practice, luxury service and a red-carpet treatment for patients are distinguishing factors. “On-site is our private Surgical Suite,” says Somenek, who's a board-certified facial plastic surgeon. “For the patients, it's like flying privately. The primary goal is patient safety and comfort. On the day of surgery, each patient is escorted through the entire process by their own surgical nurse and physician anesthesiologist. This also provides the utmost privacy and discretion.”

Both doctors have both undergone specific training in aesthetic surgery and complex revision surgery and have been known to tackle some of the most complex cases in the area. “Between the two of us, we offer an extensive list of surgical services from face-lift and rhinoplasty to breast augmentation and tummy tucks—there's something for patients of all ages,” says Pittman. “We're also one of the few practices on the East Coast to offer combination surgeries with both surgeons working simultaneously, allowing the patient to undergo shorter operative time and one recovery.”

TRUE PARTNERS, ONE FAMILY

Can a plastic surgery practice actually evoke a sense of belonging and family, even for patients? With this practice, yes.

“A lot of patients, who are just discovering our practice for the first time, don't realize that we are married to each other,” says Pittman. “That's right; we basically spend 24/7 together. We bring this up with patients because it's a large part of the ideals of our practice. We view welcoming patients into the practice like welcoming people into our home. We want patients to feel like family because that's the way we treat them.”

Like all families, of course, contentment is the goal. Somenek recounts an old adage—happy patient, happy surgeon—but says he thinks it goes both ways. “Patients have a sixth sense about their doctor as soon as they walk into the room,” he says. “It's very difficult to maintain inauthenticity. We've worked very hard to build this incredible practice, and we're very proud of it. We want to talk to patients about what we do because we truly love it.”

Then there's the consultative component of Somenek+Pittman. That is, how the doctors work with patients to make big decisions. “Plastic surgery is a personal decision,” says Pittman. “No two patients are alike, and no two bodies are alike. So, cookie-cutter surgery just isn't going to work.”

When a patient comes in for a consultation, the first question the doctors ask is fairly straightforward: What are your goals?

“It's about the patient, not the surgeon,” says Pittman. “The consultation is an opportunity to really understand what the patient wants. We discuss what's possible and occasionally need to address unrealistic expectations. The goal is to discuss how we can help the patient achieve their goals and strive to make them 99% comfortable with the process. No one is ever 100% comfortable—it just doesn't happen.”

Of course, there are countless intangibles that turn heads at the practice, including an understanding of discretion. “We understand that DC is a private town,” says Pittman. “Unlike Los Angeles and New York, Washingtonians are still private about their aesthetic desires. Our team members are specially trained to meet these needs.”

Case in point: Somenek+Pittman features a concierge that personally communicates with every surgical patient. Whether it's organizing a car service on the day of surgery or coordinating a hotel suite at the Fairmont for recovery, the team ensures the process is as streamlined and low-key as possible.

“Even the physical space caters to privacy,” says Somenek. “In our office, there's a one-way directional flow, so patients exit through a private door rather than walking through a busy waiting room. Patients leaving the surgical suite are escorted out a private exit, directly into the elevator, and are delivered to their car waiting in our underground garage.”

S+P MEDSPA

After years of planning and many months of working to perfect a luxe experience, S+P MedSpa opened earlier this summer. It's as much a work of art as it is a sanctuary for beauty and overall wellness. Perhaps the most astonishing part of the process: There were no outside designers—just the doctors, an architect and builder.

“Our inspiration came from visiting the best spas around Europe,” says Somenek. “We wanted to create a space that was cutting-edge and almost futuristic, but also warm and inviting.”

Upon entering the spa, guests are greeted by a skincare boutique, The Rotunda. This unique circular space is characterized by columns of light around the periphery, paying homage to the classic DC monument architecture. “Each room has a themed neon sign on the wall, which gives an almost playful feel and the perfect opportunity for a selfie,” says Somenek.

Exceptional services include facials, massages and IV therapy. “Our facials range from an express facial—say, for someone looking to fit it into their busy day—to our S+P Signature Facial, which is a 90-minute experience, covering everything from a Diamond Glow infusion, LED light treatment and dermaplaning,” says Pittman.

Massage is also on the menu, and the treatments are performed by some of the most experienced therapists in the business. “For some of our surgical patients, we offer lymphatic massage, which helps to reduce swelling and inflammation in the treated areas,” says Pittman. “The S+P Signature Massage is the ultimate experience, where our therapist customizes your treatment to maximally address your concerns.”

Look for deep-tissue, Swedish and sports massages as part of the impressive lineup. And for those interested in spending some time with a significant other, choose the new couples massages and facials.

During our dinner last fall, I asked the doctors what their typical days look like. They gave each other a knowing smile. Turns out no two days are ever alike. “That's what we really love about our jobs,” says Somenek. “Typically, one of us is in the office seeing new consults, post-op patients or doing injectables, and the other is in the operating room. We routinely do combination cases, where we're both operating on the same patient—I work on the face and Dr. Pittman on the body. This is so convenient for the patient, as it optimizes surgical time and affords the patient a single recovery.”

They've also remained passionate about the field, and the doctors are continuously learning about the latest techniques and devices—either via reading journal articles or staying active with clinical research. In fact, their practice has a robust clinical research component that has a number of FDA trials in progress. “We're both passionate about peer education and are often invited to teach courses at conferences around the United States and internationally,” says Pittman.

Our last exotic food course arrived (was it No. 15?), and we all applauded. It was late. These doctors had another busy day ahead, in between their Peloton workouts, patient consultations, surgeries, team meetings and dozens of decisions that serve as the backbone of their days.

They were ready, as always, to make Washington a more beautiful place. o

WITH SHEILA SAMADDAR, DDS

What first sparked your interest in medicine, health and wellness? I am a 3rd generation doctor on both sides of my family. I don't ever remember not considering a future in healthcare! My parents immigrated to the US when I was little and I watched them become an integral part of our community through their vocations. I loved and wanted that connection as well. When I really dove into dentistry, I found areas I loved- specifically cosmetic treatment and Invisalign, and really hit my stride.

What about your work continues to inspire you today? While I love a gorgeous smile, there is nothing as satisfying as knowing you really changed someone's life for the better. Whether it is getting someone to a point where discomfort is gone, or helping them smile after decades of being self-conscious, there is such a feeling of purpose. I definitely found the right career path for myself in dentistry and strive to make a difference daily.

How do you get involved in your community? I have lived and worked in my Capitol Hill neighborhood for over 2 decades. My family is connected to our community through work and the schools here, and my kids have danced, played baseball, swam and played hockey on teams on and around the Hill for many years. We actively support our local schools and teams on the Hill, as well as donate dentistry to Veterans through Dental Lifeline and most recently to Afghan refugees.

How would you describe the defining characteristics that have led to your success? I consider myself unfailingly optimistic (I always feel like I have time for everything, even when I don't), and also perpetually have FOMO (Fear of Missing Out) I have always lived life full speed ahead and love to be a part of so many aspects of my profession—whether practicing dentistry, advocating for my profession, mentoring young dentists, or lecturing in or representing dentistry, as a Spokesperson for the Academy of General Dentistry.

What drew you to practice and how has that decision been rewarding? Everything I wanted to emulate professionally I learned by watching my Mom. She worked with developmentally disabled patients, she had her own private practice and she taught at the dental school, all while juggling 3 young kids! What I loved most is that she had a really natural way with patient care, and it was so inviting. I do that in my own practice and joke that I come to work every day just so I can socialize.

What is the best advice you've ever received? As a young dentist I was encouraged to pick a few dental specialties I loved and become really phenomenal at them through extensive additional education. That guidance has served me well, both professionally and emotionally. No one wants to come to work and do projects they hate. Loving what I do makes work enjoyable. I have also been blessed with amazing mentors in DC. They helped me carve out a path to be an industry leader.

What is up next for you in terms of your career and your practice? This October, I will be inducted into the American College of Dentists, an invitation only honor based on specific parameters, including exceptional contributions to organized dentistry and the profession. As only 3.5% of dentists are nominated, I am absolutely humbled by inclusion. I absolutely love my line of work, so being honored by my peers for my contributions to our profession is an incredible honor.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

The Sundin brothers' bond makes their practice stronger.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

For Drs. Burton and Reps Sundin, plastic surgery is a family affair. As brothers and owners of the Virginia Institute of Plastic Surgery (drsundin.com) and Modern Body Contouring and Laser Center (MBody, m-body.com), the Sundins' influence spans across Virginia with locations in Tysons Corner and Richmond, offering patients both surgical and noninvasive treatments for the face and body.

Although they are the first plastic surgeons in their family, the field is a perfect blend of inspirations from their childhoods—their father was a pediatric dentist and their mother was an artist.

"We're both creative and very hands on," Burton says. "Plastic surgery is something that is always evolving and it requires you to look at both the science and the artistry of the work."

Typically, in the plastic and cosmetic surgery fields, doctors will open individual practices alone, but for the Sundin brothers, being in practice together gives them a competitive edge.

"It can be a challenge to find partners in any medical profession," Burton says. "Plastic surgeons tend to be on their own and not have partners, but it's good to have a partner who you can trust. When you're brothers, it's that much easier to accomplish business goals. We know each other so well, and as such are able to make decisions quickly. We have a bond that helps us provide better coverage and care for our patients."

Adds Reps: "It's a lot easier to work with your brother because you have more of a commitment to each other as siblings. We treat each other as equals and there are advantages to that as opposed to a hierarchy that you see at other practices. We value trusting each other."

MOVING IN

Johns Hopkins Community Physicians opens its first Northern Virginia primary care office.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

For many residents in the DMV, going to a Johns Hopkins health facility puts their mind at ease. Now, Northern Virginia and DC residents don't have to travel to Baltimore to receive the Johns Hopkins care they seek.

In early 2022, Johns Hopkins Community Physicians (hopkinsmedicine.org/community_physicians) expanded into Northern Virginia with the opening of a practice in McLean, offering a mix of adult primary care services, subspecialty and ancillary services (such as lab work), EKGs and COVID-19 testing, with plans to offer gynecology oncology treatments in the near future.

"When you think about how we bring people into a health system, it starts with primary care," says Carolyn Carpenter, president of Johns Hopkins Medicine in the National Capital Region. "We recognized we needed to bring primary care resources into the community to help create access to more subspecialty care. With this expansion, we have the opportunity to bring Johns Hopkins' global expertise to Northern Virginia."

THE FUTURE OF CANCER PREVENTION

A first-of-its-kind screening center comes to the DC metro area.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

The C-word—it's what no patient wants to hear. Thanks to a new cancer screening and prevention center in Fairfax, more residents in the Greater Washington region may not have to.

In early May, the Inova Saville Cancer Screening and Prevention Center (inova.org) officially opened, serving as a care center for people at average and high risk of developing cancer. The comprehensive facility, made possible by a $20 million donation from Paul and Linda Saville, is the region's first dedicated cancer screening and prevention center.

"Inova is very forward-thinking—they identified a huge need for individuals who are at increased risk for cancer," says Rebecca Kaltman, MD, Inova Saville Cancer Screening and Prevention Center executive director and endowed chair. "While a lot of people can get some cancer prevention care through their primary physicians, the goal of the center is to fill in the gaps, offering consultations for healthy individuals, risk assessments to identify which cancers people may be at increased risk for and to make sure patients are on time with their health screenings, like colonoscopies and mammograms."

An astounding 40% of cancer cases in the United States are attributed to preventable risk factors. Through the 24,000-square-foot center, the Inova team is creating a care model of lifestyle mentoring and intervention, offering prevention services for a variety of cancers. Holistic wellness services include nutrition guidance from dietitians, weight-loss management, access to behavioral health specialists, fitness classes and more.

"High-risk patients have told me it's very hard to find a team that will manage their care comprehensively," says Dr. Kaltman. "This is why we're creating a home for these patients to get the care they need. Not only do we prevent the cancer, but if there should be a cancer that develops, we pick it up early."

RESTORING HOPE

ID ARTSY's paramedical services empower breast cancer survivors. BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

Enriching clients' lives in the cosmetic field is about more than full lips, the perfect eyebrows and a symmetrical face. Using the latest technology and innovative techniques can give clients their sense of self back, especially when their health and wellness has been impacted by cancer, hair loss, skin pigmentation issues and more.

Lizzeth Gutierrez is an educator, artist and founder of Reston-based ID ARTSY (idartsy.com), dedicated to helping clients look and feel their best. Her business offers clients both cosmetic and paramedical tattooing services, including areola and nipple restoration for breast cancer survivors; scalp micropigmentation for those suffering from hair loss, hair thinning or scars in the scalp; scar and stretch mark camouflage; and vitiligo treatments.

"We've been offering paramedical services since 2021, but unfortunately had limited availability for these services at the time," Gutierrez says. "But, our team is growing, and this fall, we will have the availability to take on more clients interested in paramedical services."

Inspired by family members who have experienced breast cancer, as well as interacting with many clients going through cancer treatments, Gutierrez says it was a no-brainer to offer areola and nipple restoration services at ID ARTSY.

Starting in late 2022, the brand will launch "Pay with a Smile" days three times a year in which Gutierrez and her team will select local breast cancer survivors to receive complimentary procedures.

"I have met many breast cancer warriors and their stories have touched my soul," she says. "I have seen the emotional and physical toll it takes to go through it. Helping those who are affected by breast cancer through our artistry is something we are meant to do. Giving back is important to us."

Gutierrez's community involvement reaches beyond ID ARTSY as well. She serves as a founding member of Women Empowered Global, a society of award-winning influencers empowering women through career, leadership and entrepreneurial programs.

"We empower women to be their best selves through connection, mentorship and philanthropy, and we create events to help the community," says Gutierrez. At ID ARTSY, we're very much involved in such events."

PAVING THE WAY

Dr. Soheila Rostami is transforming how the cosmetic surgery field treats women.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

With 20 years of experience, Dr. Soheila Rostami is a double board-certified oculofacial plastic surgeon best known for turning back the clock on aging as the medical director and CEO of Sanctuary Cosmetic Center (sanctuarycosmeticcenter.com). We spoke with Rostami, a passionate advocate for closing the gender gap in medicine, on how she's making a worthwhile difference in cosmetic surgery.

Training the Next Generation

"Being a female surgeon in a male-dominated field has changed greatly in a positive way, but we are not there yet," says Rostami, reflecting on breaking glass ceilings.

Recently, she launched and led a new fellowship program at Sanctuary Cosmetic Center through the American Board of Cosmetic Surgery. Her first graduate—a female ophthalmologist—successfully completed the program in June 2022.

"The fellowship is a necessity," says Rostami. "Many fellowships do not train on cosmetic surgeries. The science of cosmetic surgery is separate from the medical aspects of plastic surgery, so we need to focus on cosmetic training for surgeons."

The Consequences of Social Media

Rostami acknowledges that many patients come to cosmetic surgeons with vulnerabilities about their appearances—something that can be wrongfully exploited on social media.

"I believe cosmetic surgeons have a responsibility to look at the sexual perspective of cosmetic surgery and fight against it," Rostami says. "On social media, the female body is becoming more of a sexual tool, and that shouldn't be the case. I recommend to all my colleagues to post before and after photos in tasteful ways on social media."

Honey Skincare Studio founder Murissa Wallace shares her top anti-aging tips.

From left: From injectables to medical-grade facials, Honey Skincare Studio gives clients everything they need, including consultations; Murissa Wallace.

With a background in dermatology, Murissa Wallace is on a mission to transform the skincare industry, educating clients on what it truly means to take care of their skin. As the founder of Arlington-based medspa Honey Skincare Studio (honeyskincarestudio.com), she and her team offer clients innovative and personalized treatments to solve a variety of skin concerns. Here, Wallace shares her best advice on how to nourish skin.

1. Lather Up

When it comes to anti-aging, SPF is key. Sun protection prevents uneven skin texture, lines and wrinkles. “Years in the sun does not show up as skin damage right away, but compounds over time,” says Wallace. “The best skincare regimen is always going to include daily sunscreen use.”

2. Forever Young

As skin ages, cell turnover declines, resulting in wrinkles and fine lines. To prevent signs of aging, Wallace suggests the following: “People in their 20s need to start using vitamins topically, like vitamin C, K and E. In your 30s, add in a good retinol. In your 40s and beyond, incorporate professional skin-resurfacing treatments, like photofacials, into your routine once or twice a year.”

3. Homebody

“Skin journeys start with tailored home care routines,” Wallace says. “Eighty percent of the results in the treatment room are going to rely on the perfect home care routine, which oftentimes does not include over-the-counter products.” Wallace recommends speaking with a skincare expert to determine which medical-grade products are best for specific skincare needs.

4. Lean on the Experts

“The majority of people do not understand the fundamental causes of why their skin looks the way it does, and a lot of it boils down to lifestyle choices,” Wallace says. “All of our facials at Honey Skincare Studio are 90 minutes long because we build in consultation time with each treatment. Education is the most important part of skincare.”

SMOOTH OPERATOR

Finally, noninvasive QWO is the answer for those battling cellulite. BY PHEBE WAHL

Cellulite plagues around 90% of women and can impact many regardless of weight, diet or fitness level. While weight loss and exercise can improve the appearance of cellulite, other treatments range from laser and radiofrequency to retinol creams. Many options require regularly repeated treatments that often yield minimal results... until now.

Enter QWO (qwo.com), the brand of collagenase clostridium hystoliticum-aas injectable and—here's the part to pay attention to—the first and only FDA-approved nonsurgical treatment for cellulite. “It’s so great to finally have an easy injectable treatment to offer patients for this pervasive problem,” says Atlanta-based Dr. Laura Beaty of Beaty Facial Plastic Surgery (beatymd.com), one of the first practices in Georgia to offer the injectable. “We’re excited to have a solution that really works!” adds Beaty. Yes, you read that right: QWO actually works, and—if you can believe it—the treatment is quick, easy and painless too.

Here’s the skinny: Cellulite is caused by strands of collagen pulling down on the skin’s surface, resulting in depressions and pushing fat upward. (Layman’s terms: The further you get over the hill, the more skin thins, fat pushes up and lines appear.) But here’s where QWO waves a magic wand to banish all of the unwanted cellulite—and all of the insecurities that come with it. “Patients are administered injections, which take less than 15 minutes,” says Beaty.

“We’re the largest provider of QWO in the country,” shares Dr. Bruce Katz (juvaskin.com), an award-winning, board-certified dermatologist who worked on the clinical trials for QWO. The Manhattan-based doctor says the demand is off the charts due to the successful results. “We just ordered 150 vials of it. That’s how big the demand is,” says Katz.

The treatment is performed in-office; the injections work to dissolve the collagen in the fibrous bands, which are bands under the skin that thicken and cause tension and the “dimpled” look of cellulite. Results are seen in as little as 10 weeks, and the treatment itself has no downtime. It requires three sessions, and results last. Now that is a bottom line we can get behind! ◉

THE EYES HAVE IT

The leader of the #NazSquad shares insight into her world.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

For oculofacial plastic surgeon Dr. Maryam Nazemzadeh, her practice is her passion project. Lovingly called “Dr. Naz” by her patients—whom she’s dubbed the #NazSquad—the award-winning expert in cosmetic eye surgery and cosmetic injectables opened The Naz Experience (thenazexperience.com) to help patients find their confidence and to improve the typical patient-doctor relationship.

One of approximately 20 surgeons in the world with both pediatric and adult oculofacial plastic surgery training, Dr. Naz’s extensive knowledge in facial beauty and function attracts patients from all over the globe. We caught up with her on breaking barriers as a female surgeon, sharing vulnerabilities with patients and what’s next for her brand.

What gave you the push to open The Naz Experience?

I never thought I would open up my own practice and always assumed I’d work alongside someone else. As a female surgeon, you’re told you’ll never be able to juggle a family and open your own practice. But this was my passion; it was never a part-time thing for me. I realized there was a need for something more in cosmetics, especially for women.

How are your relationships with patients different from other doctors?

Traditionally, doctors are taught to create a boundary between themselves and their patients, but to me that means you can’t fully be yourself. My experience completely changed as a surgeon when I decided to share more about my journey with my patients. By creating a safe space, patients are more open to share their own vulnerabilities and I can help them with their self-healing. It’s important for me to create that space for women. That’s why The Naz Experience is different: I know my patients and they know me.

What’s next for your brand?

The ultimate goal is to create a center dedicated to women to not only fulfill their cosmetic needs, but to really incorporate healing into it. I see a lot of women who have lost their way and my practice helps to get them back on track with self-love. Also, this fall, I’m moving my practice to Tysons Corner to be closer to DC. Now, we’ll be in the center of all of my DMV patients.

ICE QUEEN

Cool Contours expands with the opening of its second location in Northern Virginia.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

Medical spas abound in the DC region, but not every brand focuses on a niche. Jennifer Kim knows the power of doing one thing and doing it well. When launching Cool Contours (cool-contours.com) in 2018, she decided to solely specialize in CoolSculpting, a cosmetic treatment that freezes stubborn areas to remove excess fat.

Her focus has paid off well. Today, Cool Contours is the leading CoolSculpting venue in Virginia, and the flagship Fairfax location has been so successful that Kim is opening a second Cool Contours this month in Arlington. We caught up with Kim to discuss more.

WHY OPEN AN ARLINGTON

LOCATION? A lot of our patients are coming from DC, Arlington and Alexandria, so I wanted to have two different locations that would be convenient and easily accessible not only for people in Virginia, but for those in DC and Maryland too.

COOL CONTOURS OFFERS COOLSCULPTING AND COOLTONE. WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE TREATMENTS?

CoolSculpting is for permanently eliminating fat and CoolTone strengthens, tones and firms muscles. Those results depend upon the patient because we are dealing with muscle and it isn't permanent. It's like going to the gym—if you go regularly, you'll keep the muscle tone, but if you don't exercise, it will slowly go down. Our free consultation with each patient determines which treatment is best for their goals.

WHY MAKE COOL CONTOURS A NICHE BUSINESS?

I wanted to be very focused on one thing. I came from a fitness background where I managed studios. The reason many brands like SoulCycle and Pure Barre offer such a high level of service and results is because they are the best at what they do. I invested all of my energy into being the best at CoolSculpting and we've continued to develop new techniques and treatment plans through the years.

From top: Jennifer Kim built Cool Contours with the intention of being highly specialized in CoolSculpting; with thousands of treatments completed, Cool Contours is currently ranked No. 1 in Virginia for CoolSculpting procedures.

CONTOURED CONFIDENCE

Dr. Bitar's Model Lift offers a nonsurgical option to create "harmonious symmetry" of the face.

BY HOLLY MARTINEZ

A pioneer in facial injectables, George Bitar, MD, FACS, has been at the forefront of the nonsurgical movement for two decades.

"As I started my practice 20 years ago, something exciting was happening in the world of plastic surgery," says Dr. Bitar, founder of Fairfax's Bitar Cosmetic Surgery Institute (bitarinstitute.com). "Injectables were starting to become FDA approved, so I trained with six plastic surgeons around the world to learn more. I started my practice in 2002, and during the first month in practice, Botox was FDA approved for cosmetic use. With that, we were able to offer people something more."

Enter Bitar's signature treatment: The Model Lift, a nonsurgical facial contouring procedure that "aims to achieve harmony between a patient's cheek, chin, nose, lips and jawline," he says.

Through the use of fillers and neurotoxins, Bitar and his team work to create the symmetrical, desired outcome for the patient without the need for invasive surgeries.

"I understood the power of injectables, Botox and fillers before they became widespread and I knew the potential they held to change the shape of the face without using facial implants or doing a face-lift," Bitar says. "That was my aha moment."

GIVE US A KYSSE

Galderma's newly unveiled lip filler, Restylane Kysse, offers a modern iteration of "the lipstick effect" for the perfect, pout-plumping pick-me-up. BY PHEBE WAHL

“With COVID-19 sweeping the globe, women [were] at home, wearing less makeup and focused on flawless skin and natural beauty,” says Manhattan-based cosmetic dermatologist Dr. Marina Peredo (skinfluencenyc.com). During these unprecedented times, we’ve seen a reemergence of “the lipstick effect,” a term coined during the Great Depression when—as women searched for a way to feel beautiful when people were struggling to keep their spirits lifted—lipstick became one of the most purchased products on the market. “I think, as dermatologist offices start to reopen, we will see an increased interest in lip fillers, creating this generation’s version of ‘the lipstick effect,’ with people looking for ways to enhance their features without makeup,” she suggests.

So, how does the newly launched, FDA-approved, hyaluronic acid lip filler Restylane Kysse (restylaneusa.com) differ from fillers of yesteryear? “In the past, if I needed to treat perioral lip lines and enhance the fullness of the lips in older patients, I would normally need different products when doing lip augmentations—one for volume, another to smooth fine lines. This means I would need to use more product to achieve the desired results,” Peredo says.

As New York-based plastic surgeon Dr. Lara Devgan (laradevganmd.com) explains, “Restylane Kysse is similar to existing products but offers a new paint in a plastic surgeon’s palette. One thing that differentiates Restylane Kysse is that it uses a unique XpresHAn cross-linking technology (not found in other lip fillers), allowing us to achieve natural structure and flexibility,” she adds. The XpresHAn technology is designed for better tissue integration, resulting in more natural expression. Bonus: It also allows for injectors to use less product. “Restylane Kysse is so versatile. I can inject it both superficially for fine lines and deep for lip fullness with great results,” Peredo says, noting the product can also be a remedy for the corners of the mouth and causes less swelling and bruising than other fillers.

IS SO VERSATILE. I CAN INJECT IT BOTH
SUPERFICIALLY FOR
FINE LINES AND DEEP
FOR LIP FULLNESS WITH GREAT RESULTS.”

—DR. MARINA PEREDO

“Especially when selecting a filler to treat the lips, you need a balance between structure and flexibility,” says Dr. Joshua Zeichner (zeichnerdermatology.com), director of cosmetic and clinical research at Mount Sinai hospital’s Department of Dermatology. “If the filler is too firm, it will prevent the lips from moving naturally. If the filler is too soft, you won’t be able to restore shape and structure. The particle size and cross-linking technology of Restylane Kysse,” he continues, “gives a balance of both structure and plumping, along with a longer-lasting benefit than previous lip fillers on the market.”

Given the additional hours spent at home, Devgan points to a growing trend: “With more time at home and more awkward Zoom angles, there has been heightened interest in all aesthetic procedures.” She cheekily adds that masks can, conveniently, cover any transient bruising or swelling. “In my hands,” Zeichner offers, “patients have experienced less swelling as compared to other products, which means happier patients postprocedure and less downtime.” For those concerned about a natural feel, a “kissability” study showed that significant others were satisfied with their partner’s lips after treatment. Pucker up. ◉

CHIN UP

Thanks to two new, noninvasive facial remodeling treatments to tighten the lower face and neck, things are looking up.

BY PHEBE WAHL

As so many of us play beat the clock trying to find solutions on how to age gracefully, keeping an eye on new technology is the name of the game. “One of the newest things is called Evoke,” shares board-certified dermatologist Dr. Bruce Katz of JUVA Skin & Laser Center (juvaskin.com) in New York—one of the first to offer the treatment. Evoke (inmodemd.com) employs radiofrequency (RF) energy to the cheeks, jowls, jawline and neck to remodel and tighten the skin.

“This is a new-school bipolar radiofrequency device that we use to tighten the jowl area and the neck,” Katz explains, sharing that the noninvasive treatment requires zero downtime. “The best part about it is it’s hands free—so we actually apply the applicator to the person’s cheeks or their neck, and walk out of the room. They can read emails, listen to music,” he says of the 40-minute treatment. “With the pandemic, a lot of people don’t want someone over and over them for half an hour working on them, so this has really become very popular.”

Treatments to tighten sagging jowls and the neck area have been in hot demand since the pandemic brought into focus these areas often seen in high definition on video calls. While other options like Ultherapy have been around for some time, Evoke offers an option that is much less painful in comparison. “It’s not painful at all,” says Katz.

Other radiofrequency options include the Lumenis NuEra Tight. “The Lumenis NuEra Tight with FocalRF (lumenis.com) is a heat-controlled radiofrequency skin-smoothing system with the power to target and revive, uplift and perfect, and tighten the skin,” explains acclaimed dermatological surgeon Dr. Patricia Wexler (wexlerdermatology.com). “It can improve the overall quality of the skin and even helps to improve the appearance of cellulite and skin laxity,” Wexler says. “The treatment can be done on both the body and face, and requires zero downtime or discomfort. The radiofrequency is applied via a paddle that can both destroy fat cells and tighten the skin.” Wexler notes there is great flexibility with how the treatment can be used and downtime is minimal. “One of the great things about this procedure is that you can control whether you want to target skin for laxity or treat the fat, or both,” Wexler says. “Best part, there is no downtime.” ◉

She specializes in various procedures including wireless lumpectomies, hidden scar technique, nerve preserving nipple-sparing mastectomy and oncoplastic breast conservation surgery.

"I always wanted to be in medicine since I was a small child as both my parents were scientists. I grew up in Africa where they both were HIV researchers in the 1980s and I saw the major impact that medicine had in people's lives," she says. It was once she moved to America and went to college that she fell in love with medicine and her dream of becoming a surgeon and working in women's health was born.

Dr. De La Cruz's patients are what motivates her, especially those fighting against breast cancer. During breast cancer awareness month in October, she is hoping to chariot events such as high risk genetic screening for patients in an underserved population. She has a strong and long-standing commitment to promote equity for all breast cancer patients.

"As for my personal endeavor I am looking forward to encouraging other minority women like myself, to break the glass ceiling and sit at the table," she says. "I believe that it is important for us to be able to vocalize our dreams and our desires so that others can help us along the ladder to be able to climb it."

For dermatologist Neeraja Mattay, MD, FAAD, nothing is more fulfilling than being part of a patient's transformative process. Practicing for 30 years, she currently sees patients at U.S. Dermatology Partners' Sterling and Centreville locations.

"It is hard to imagine so much time has passed," she says. "The chance to connect with patients, gain their trust and help them was what drew me to practice and it is still what motivates me today."

An expert in general dermatology, skin cancer and cosmetic dermatology, Dr. Mattay doesn't only meet the medical needs of her patients, but connects with them to provide a personal touch.

"My residency mentor told me to always look every patient in the eye and to end patient interactions with, 'Is there anything else I can help you with?'" she says. "It is gratifying to have meaningful conversations with patients. They have taught me so much more than I could have ever imagined."

Dr. Mattay also supports the Dermatology Foundation and American Academy of Dermatology, and is an advocate for improving the dermatology field as a whole.

"It has been rewarding to be involved in skin cancer screenings, hospital educational lectures and mentoring students," she says. "It is exciting to be a part of the rapidly evolving field of dermatology. However, there is much work to be done to address the health care inequities in our system. In particular, skin of color has not received appropriate attention and it is time for education and advocacy in this field."

The founder of ProMD Health, George Gavrila, MD, strives to improve patients' confidence, appearance, and mental health through his cosmetic dermatology services.

While most practices specialize in either making you look better or making you feel better, Dr. Gavrila and his team have both the tools and expertise to do both. From cosmetic injections to aesthetic lasers and hormone optimization therapy, the full suite of services at ProMD Health lay the groundwork for patients to live out the best versions of themselves.

Dr. Gavrila is driven by the moments at the end of a procedure when he put the mirror in the patient's hand and gets to witness them develop a renewed sense of confidence. "The intersection between patient care, artistic expression, and medicine captured my interest and continues to excite me to this day," says Dr. Gavrila.

ProMD is slated to open three new offices this year, and Dr. Gavrila is also developing succession plans for all employees, as well as an online training curriculum to educate existing and future providers on how to be first in class.

Outside of the office, Dr. Gavrila can be found fostering the philanthropic arm of his practice, ProMD Helps, which donates to numerous charities and offers pro-bono services to those in need. "Philanthropy and community involvement is a huge part of ProMD, my ethos and why I started ProMD Helps," Dr. Gavrila says. "Large or small, human or animal, we look to improve our community as best we can."

The two brothers are originally from Virginia Beach and frequented the DC area while growing up. Dr. Repts Sundin is an alumnus of Georgetown. Dr. Burt Sundin graduated from Duke University. Both are board certified plastic surgeons and also have advanced fellowship training in cosmetic surgery. Within their practice, they specialize in cosmetic facial and body rejuvenation, offering the latest technologies and modern techniques.

MBody was founded in Tysons Corner in 2014 as a non-invasive division of Drs. Sundin's successful plastic surgery practice, Virginia Institute of Plastic Surgery. The practice has become one of the leading providers of CoolSculpting in the country, with over twelve years of CoolSculpting experience, and has performed over 14,000 treatments.

The two doctors also offer the latest, advanced techniques for liposuction. Their signature, trademarked technique LITTLE Lipo®, utilizes gentler, vibrational liposuction, and, in many cases, can be performed without general anesthesia. Both surgeons also have extensive experience with the latest skin tightening technique, Renuvion®.

Drs. Burton and Repts Sundin are also experts in cosmetic facial rejuvenation including face and neck lift, rhinoplasty, botox and fillers, and noninvasive rejuvenation with RF microneedling (Infini Genius).

Both doctors are active in their community, and constantly strive to educate people about the importance of safe plastic surgery and using board certified plastic surgeons. They have both participated in missions, providing medical care to underserved communities. Both doctors are passionate about cosmetic plastic surgery and frequently are asked to speak publicly on the latest advances in non-invasive and surgical body contouring and facial rejuvenation.

"My interest, particularly in plastic surgery, stemmed from the lack of advanced techniques being offered to women and BIPOC patients in both the aesthetic and reconstructive realms," Dr. Bolden says. "I was drawn to Cultura Dermatology and Plastic Surgery because our practice is centered around best practices for all cultures, and especially skin of color. It is beyond rewarding to provide patients with ethnically appropriate treatments that deliver phenomenal results that are harmonious with their cultural norms."

A top dermatologist at U.S. Dermatology Partners' Sterling location since 2010, Dr. Anjali Chandela cares for patients with expertise and a listening ear.

"I find dermatology fascinating because skin conditions can manifest in such different ways in people, which requires a real understanding of distribution of the rash and how presentation can vary depending on skin type," she says. "I love the visual nature of dermatology and being able to look at a rash and often immediately know what it is and how I can help the patient."

An expert in the field, Dr. Chandela is never afraid of a challenge as she treats a variety of skin concerns, including women's dermatologic issues, psoriasis, eczema, acne, skin cancer and rosacea. If she is perplexed by a patient's disease presentation or lack of response to treatment, she will conduct further testing, research the latest literature and delve deep into the patient's history, as well as anything else that needs to be done to help heal the patient.

"Dermatology is challenging and exciting," she says. "I am amazed at the skin's ability to heal itself when disease is treated and triggers are removed."

It is not only Dr. Chandela's mastery in the dermatology field that sets her apart, but her patient-centric approach.

"Being unassuming and listening to patients without judgment allows me to gain helpful clues to treating their condition," Dr. Chandela says. "It's important to never belittle or be condescending. Patients will always remember how you made them feel."
